BEQUEST

A bequest is simply a gift detailed in your Will.

Gifts via your Will may be as little or as large as you wish, this brochure helps you to gain some understanding of the various options and some suggested wording you may consider.

At all times we encourage you to consider your circumstances and families interest, and that you seek independent legal advice when drafting a Will.

Regarding giving, the bible says the following:

"Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not regretfully or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver." 2 Corinthians 9:7

Importance of having a valid and up to date Will:

More than half of Australians don't have a valid Will in place, without a Will, the government decides how the estate is to be distributed, leading to delays, potential for disputes or unintended outcomes. Having a valid and up to date Will gives you greater certainty that your resources are dispersed in accordance to your wishes, allowing you to provide for a loved one. As part of your Will you also may wish to choose to give a charitable gift to your church or charitable cause.

BEQUEST - Three Main Categories

There are several ways of leaving a bequest, dependent on what is best for you and your family. Broadly there are three categories of bequests, in addition to the various categories you may direct your gift proportionately, such as giving a percentage of your gift to your nominated Parish.

General Bequest: You may name a specific amount or percentage of your estate to be gifted. This option allows for either a set amount or percentage to be divided from your total estate.

Residual Bequest: After your primary beneficiaries have been considered, you may nominate the part or the remaining residual of your estate.

Specific Bequest Another option is you may specifically bequest, such as specific shares, property, or proceeds from insurance.

Further Clarity and Nomination:

From your bequest, you can provide further direction as to your wishes, by nominating any proportion of your gift to be given to your Parish or Ministry. This way you leave a living legacy to the community or cause you wish to see thrive years into the future.
